

RESEARCH ANALYST (ASSISTANT TO THE MANAGING DIRECTOR)

SMI GmbH is an international Market Research company located in Reutte in Tyrol, Austria. Our primary task is to provide market intelligence and strategic advice to the global Specialty Steel Industries (stainless steel, tool steel, nickel alloys, etc.). Our projects are primarily multi client studies in support of specialty steel producers making market entrance, market development or investment decisions. Beside the market studies, SMI is also active in organizing seminars world wide. For more information please refer to our website: www.steel-intelligence.com

SMI GmbH enjoys a unique position within the global Specialty Steel Industry and therefore the demand for our services is continuously growing. For this reason we are looking for a Research Analyst - as assistant to our Management - to reinforce our highly professional team.

TASKS:

After a training period the Research Analyst should be able to independently manage and execute parts of market research projects, especially annual updates of existing reports. Typical activities in this position are: desk research, telephone interviews, field visit preparation, analysis of financial & market data, preparation of statistics and compilation of market reports. Most contacts and correspondence with industry members and business partners are in English language; our final reports are written in English as well. Occasional global travelling is part of the assignment.

REQUIREMENTS:

A completed academic education coupled with the understanding of business economics is a basic requirement. Experience in metallurgy or mechanical engineering would be an additional asset. The person should have an analytical mind, a good feel for "figures" and should strive for excellent results. You should also be able to effectively communicate and report the findings to our Management. The Research Analyst should have very good verbal and writing skills in English language. You should have also a positive attitude towards computers and modern communication technology. Knowledge in standard programs such as Word, Excel and PowerPoint are a necessity.

If you are interested in this challenging professional opportunity please forward your application with CV to:
